

Beach Street

RESTAURANTS

Introduction

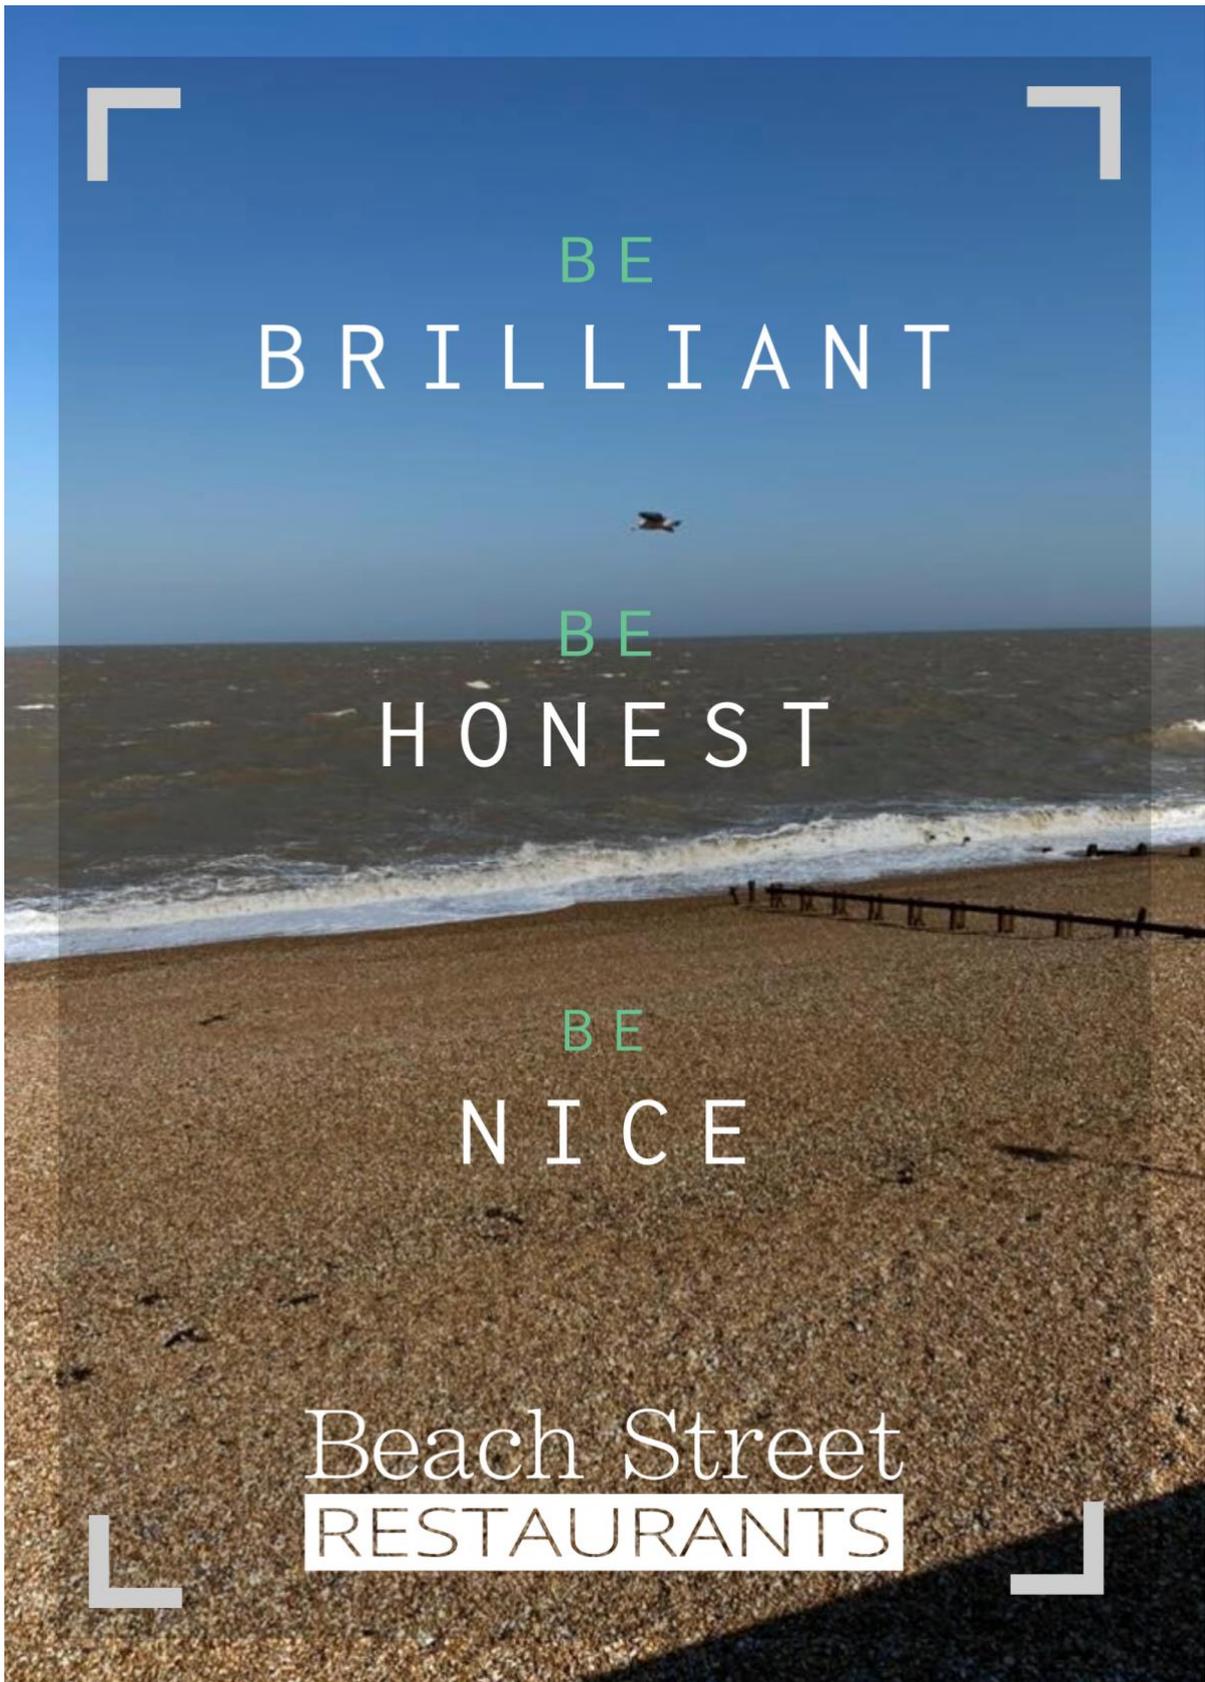

The current COVID-19 pandemic is unlike anything our industry has ever had to face. It poses a huge threat to livelihoods, our well-being and the future of hospitality. This document is our guide on how Beach Street Restaurants are trying to navigate the situation, what processes we will be putting in place to comply with health and safety guidance, and importantly how we come out of this at the other end together as a team with our values intact. As the situation is fluid with new information released every day, we must make it clear that our plans are liable to adapt, and the details change.

They have been built using risk assessments for each of our restaurants & pubs and with the intention to be fully compliant with government guidelines. We are doing our best with only good intentions, there may be elements of our guide that conflict with updated guidelines so we will monitor and adjust where it is necessary to do so.

Our only goal is to create a safe and hospitable environment for our loyal teams and customers, so that we can return to a place of normality and create an environment where we can relax and enjoy the hospitality we're known for. The road back is looking long and perhaps even more perilous than the journey so far. We have a duty to all our team members to do everything we can to protect their jobs and well-being.

We will make mistakes and lessons will be learned but we will give careful consideration to every decision we make for the protection and consideration of others. Together we will overcome this as individuals, as teams, and as a company. Now is a time more than any other for us to live our core values, be honest, be brilliant, and be nice.

- Gloves and face coverings will be provided for those involved in the receiving of goods in accordance with our risk assessments which recognised these as higher risk transmission areas.

The health and well-being of our team is and has always been our number one priority. Now more than ever this is crucial to create comfortable surroundings for our teams. Hospitality is not a work-from-home industry and therefore as we slowly reopen our doors we will have to expose ourselves to a certain level of risk when working with others and serving our customers. It is our mission to ensure that risk is minimised to the lowest possible level and we at Beach Street Restaurants have considered every angle to mould our strategy through this.

We have signed up to the “We offer Covid-19 testing to our team” scheme to help keep our team and customers safe. This is a new scheme from the NHS test and trace helping to keep people safe in the workplace. We provide lateral flow tests to all our team members for use at home.

The government recommend that team members take two tests a week, 3 to 4 days apart - so for example on a Tuesday and a Saturday each week. And then report their results online (both negative and positive).

As always, we ask our teams to be respectful of each other and sensitive of the fact that people will have genuine concerns. ‘be nice’ is one of our three core values and through compassion towards other we will emerge from this crisis stronger than ever.

- If it is possible to avoid public transport alternative methods should be taken.
- The physical health of our working team members is more important than ever, so regular scheduled breaks & convenient access to water healthy food and drink on duty is paramount.
- Regular communications are maintained between all staff members through our weekly Workplace updates and through Workplace chat applications.

- Temperature checks using digital non contact thermometers will be carried out before the start of each shift. A daily record of this will be kept and stored on site by the Duty manager.
- Any team member showing a temperature of 37.8 degrees or more will be asked to return home to self-isolate.
- We have carried out an internal staff assessment to identify who is vulnerable/extremely vulnerable/living with someone who is.

We will come against different situations over the next few months and here is a list of possible scenarios which may occur and how our team members should respond:

1) A team member demonstrates symptoms of COVID

They must notify the duty manager and they will be instructed to return home, book for a COVID test and self-isolate until the results.

2) A team member gets a positive result

They must contact the duty manager as soon as possible. The team member must self-isolate immediately. If they had a test because they had symptoms, they must keep self-isolating for at least 10 days from when the symptoms started. If they had a test but have not had symptoms, self-isolate for 10 days from when they had the test. You may be contacted by the NHS and asked for information for test & trace. The Duty Manager will need to check the rota and notify those who may be considered a 'Contact' (see below). Depending on time of their last shift, an additional deep clean may be required. The virus is known to last for 72 hours. All areas are sanitised regularly & thoroughly throughout all and at the end of shifts.

3) What happens to the team who worked with the member who has tested positive.

They will be contacted by a Duty Manager. They only need to self-isolate if they can be described as a 'Contact' of the person who tested positive. What is meant by a 'Contact' is as follows:

- people who spend significant time in the same household as a person who has tested positive for COVID-19
- sexual partners
- a person who has had face-to-face contact (within one metre), with someone who has tested positive for COVID-19, including:
- being coughed on

- having a face-to-face conversation within one metre
- having skin-to-skin physical contact, or
- contact within one metre for one minute or longer without face-to-face contact
- a person who has been within 2 metres of someone who has tested positive for COVID-19 for a prolonged time - more than 15 minutes
- a person who has travelled in a small vehicle with someone who has tested positive for COVID-19 or in a large vehicle or plane near someone who has tested positive for COVID-19

4) What does a team member do if they are a 'Contact' or have been notified through Test & Trace that they need to self-isolate

They must notify their Duty Manager and self-isolate at home for 10 days from the date of the last contact with the positive tested individual or from when they were notified via Test & Trace. They could be fined if they do not stay at home and self-isolate, if contacted by NHS Test and Trace and instructed to do so.

They must stay at home for 10 days and follow the self-isolation guidance.

5) If a Team Member is a 'Contact', do the other people in their household need to self-isolate?

If the Team Member does not have symptoms of COVID-19, other people in the household do NOT need to self-isolate at home.

6) What happens if a Team Member develops symptoms after 10 days of isolation?

If after 10 days of self-isolation the Team Member then begin to develop symptoms of COVID-19, self-isolate again and arrange to have a test.

At this stage, if they live with other people, they will also need to self-isolate while awaiting the test results. If the result is positive, they must self-isolate for 10 days.

7) Someone in a Team Member's household has been informed they are a 'Contact' or been notified via test & trace but they have NO symptoms

The Team Member does NOT need to self-isolate

8) Someone in a Team Member's Household has been informed they are a 'Contact' or been notified via test & trace and they HAVE symptoms

The team member must self-isolate as per number 4 above.

9) A Team Member shares a home with someone who has symptoms of COVID-19

The team member must notify their managers and they will be asked to self-isolate until the results of a COVID test are available. If a positive result see number 4 above, if the result is negative the Team Member can return to work.

10) When does a Team Member need to have a Covid test?

You should only arrange for a test if you develop symptoms of COVID-19. The most important symptoms are: a new continuous cough, a high temperature, a loss of, or change in, your normal sense of taste or smell (anosmia). There is no need to have a test if you have no symptoms.

11) Do Team Members need to tell Duty Managers if they are having a test or that a family member is having a test?

Yes, as they will need to amend the rota and be notified that the team member is self-isolating.

12) How will Team Members be paid during self-isolation or after a positive test result.

Team members who have a positive test result and those who are self-isolating will, as long as they are eligible for, receive Statutory Sick Pay. Or alternatively you can take this period as 'Holiday'.
